PREFACE.

The first impulse or impression presented to my mind of this work, was from singing those words, so charming yet to me, "A Hundred Years to come." In commencing this volume the author is fully aware that it will not in every part suit all who may peruse it; but friends you have Van's best, and I ask you to be lenient and criticise charitably. If errors are found do not place all of the fault upon the compiler, for the within have been selected from many sources, and my informants in some cases have given them from memory, there being no record, and if wrong could not be obviated for this was the only source of obtaining such facts. Again, remember no work of this kind was ever strictly complete and correct. It was the intent at first of giving a complete historical sketch of each individual especially in the first generations; but it would more than double the size of the present volume and add too much time and expense. Not intending to be benefited financially, but to preserve and secure facts relating to, and dates of this family, which, unless preserved, would be distroyed and irrevocably lost; but which if placed in a volume like this (some of which will we hope be appreciated by the Fillow, Philo and Philleo descendants), be preserved from generation to generation. I was not content with the study of results of others' investigations and compilations of genealogies, but saw a need of an effort on my part to secure a record of this family. In this I have been actuated by purer and higher motives than prospect of untold wealth by inheritance in the "Old Country." The intent has been to include all descendants of John Fillow: unlike the excuse of some genealogists, "it is unnecessary— as the females (if married) will be found in genealogies of other families— and say the time will come when all prominent family records will be published." We record with extreme pleasure the more general interest and knowledge of benefit and growing intelligence of the genealogical work now attracting so much attention, and by which those who would can leave something that their children or grandchildren may know who their ancestors were. If this work of the author shall hasten the day when a history and family record like this even shall be found in each family, then we shall not feel that our labor has been altogether in vain. Whitmore says: "It is a laudable undertaking in anyone to collect the evidences and relate the exploits of his progenitors." Who does not feel gratified when his name is honored, and grieved when dishonored? Who has not a natural interest in the name he bears, and we certainly ought all to have an ancestral reverence for those from whom we descended, and from which we derived our characteristics and our being. We erect costly imported and native granites, etc., to mark the last resting place. We think nothing of expending large amounts, sometimes almost starving the children, to erect something obelistic to mark their graves of burial. Who would ever be forgotten? None. Sometimes who would know their grandparents' names if no record could be found, or none living who knew them. I found none willing to form this Fillow Record or undertake this task. It seems to be left for me to apply myself to this object, and I have done so heartily. I have been careful to place within as many certain dates as possible, costing much trouble and time comparing different records of the same person, to ensure reliability. It is stated that only one-tenth of the people think for themselves, and during the time spent in the production of this work I am sure I belong to this tenth class. A few have expressed the thought that they care nothing who their ancestors were, but I must ask where is the man who cares nothing for his mother, does not respect her, and feel that his blood is a part of hers? Let her name be ridiculed, character assailed, and where is he who will not resent it and stand up for her protection, no matter how low his situation in life? No one certainly can be insensible to the feeling of pride in a virtuous and honorable parentage. We are friends, part of each other, and is there one who cares not for himself? Are there any who, while reading of a battle in which his ancestors are honestly engaged, who cares not for their success? We are a part of our ancestors, would we wish for our own defeat? Oh, let us respect our forefathers as we would wish our descendants to respect us; for shall we not be numbered with those of the past to make room for our successors? Some of us have but little of this blood, but what we have let us cherish, respect and honor. Who but to our ancestors must we feel indebted for every good quality we have? This generation now living are making a history and creating matter for biographical thought, for those who are to come after us, and can we afford to leave this ancestral knowledge unmarked? The next generation will be filled out by some unknown chronicler and may ours and theirs glow with honorable incidents and be held full of respect. May the reading of this volume tend to unite and bind more fully and firmly together, in love and friendship, those names contained within. I have been actuated by duty and fial affection for my ancestors, learning from their history the call of respect and honor in this new country, with the toils and trials which they had to endure and contend with. Of our friends we can only estimate them in their true character when they are gone forever. A writer remarks: "The time has arrived in which it becomes all important to preserve family memorials. The history of families from their first emmigration to the present time, embracing the descent and inter-marriages, is a field of investigation which has been much neglected in this country. The generations who were acquainted with the early scenes and improvements have long since disappeared."

It may seem unimportant to record the annals of families who are not now distinguished ; but genealogy should acknowledge no such distinction, for although, in this generation or even those past, we fail to find eminence—we may in the next. Two families may be of equal distinction in this generation ; a hundred years elapse and we find general prominence in one, while the other falls into oblivion; another hundred and the first disappears, while the latter takes prominence. We can recall families whom we see proud in high blood degenerate in a single generation. The cause of this is often brought about by inter-marriage, in which heredity transmits characteristics none too elevating. This genealogical work is not of modern invention, for the ancient Jews or Hebrews were very careful to preserve the genealogy of Aaron's descendants, and any aspiring to priesthood must be able to prove himself as one, or he was not eligible to the office of High Priest. These tables were kept in the ancient archives of the Temple. Again I say, who is there who wishes to be forgotten ? for we in the common ranks of life must resign ourselves to the probability that we will be forgotten, too, by our own grandchildren if our name be not kept by some such memorial as this. But few living Americans can tell their great grandparents' name. We should be drawn together by the ties of consanguinity. In the early ancestors of the Fillow family there seems to be a characteristic to make no wills, and settling the estates among themselves rather than form of law. In this there appears no distribution of property which would instruct me in the history of biographical sketches of the early ancestors. In my researches I have been compelled to visit town, probate court, church and private records, in which difficulties have arisen similar to those described by Hinman: "Often badly written, or orthography frequently difficult to decipher, old books with obliterated margins, family records in ancient, tattered bibles, tombstone's figures obliterated by time," rubbing off the lichen before even a trace could be found. I must again remark with Hinman: "Serve yourself better, if you can, by collecting the genealogy and history of your ancestors in this country than this." Rev. James Hoyt says: "A well executed book of this kind honors the name that fills up its pages." In this we wish to erect a pointed monument more enduring than marble to the memory of our remote ancestors, whom we have never seen. I shall not reply to the criticism this work may call forth, for I trust the book itself and the impulse of the author prove its own character. An attempt has been made to arrange it so simply that all may understand it, and yet as condensed as possible. Whether the author has succeeded is left for you to decide.

INTRODUCTION.

Would it not be of interest to briefly give the history of France, the home and birthplace of our ancestor, John Fillow. Bonnechoses, in history of France, says: "The vast territory between the Rhine, almost all of which bears the name of France, was primitively known under the name of Gaul, and as far back as history can discover was occupied by two races — Celtic and Iberians — and formed the foundation of the Gaulish population. Gaul was for many ages plunged into barbarism, and so remained till about fifty years before the Christian era, when it submitted to the Roman yoke. During the three first ages of the Christian era their country served as a field of battle for the generals who disputed the empire." Goodrich, in his geography and history. says: "It is probable France was inhabited 2,000 years before the Christian era, but for many centuries were few in number, wild and savage." The name of Gaul was taken from the Romans, and of Celtic origin. Julius Cæsar, fifty years B. C., subjugated Gaul, which ceased to be savage. Italian and Celtic is shown in the French language, which is a compound of Celtic and Latin, etc. Gaul was overrun lastly by Franks from the borders of the Rhine, who became the ruling people. Clovis, 481, A. D., first king; Louis Phillipe last, driven from the throne, 1848. Massacre, of St. Bartholomew eve occurred under Charles IX, 24th August, 1572. For eight days and nights blood flowed in the streets of larger cities, and the gutters were choked with dead bodies. It was a Catholic scheme to annihilate the Huguenots or Protestants. Even the king himself shot from his windows. The Pope of Rome, Gregory VIII, deemed these glorious events. He struck medals to its honor. In Buck's Theological Dictionary we find that "Paris seemed to be the starting point of the massacre." The amount of slain is estimated (by Thos. Newton, D. D., Lord Bishop of Bristol, 1754,) at 30,000 or 40,000. Another estimates as high as 70,000. Upon the publication of the revocation of the edict of Nantes (1685) at least 500,000 Protestants took refuge in foreign countries, and in 1705 no single organized congregation of Huguenots was left in all France" (Amer. Enc'l, vol. ix, p. 38). Many departed even before the edict for North America, and settled in New Amsterdam (N. Y.). Prof. A. Guyot, LL. D., in his history of Huguenotism (Astor Library) says: "About 500,000 went into exile. Many of the best families in the United States descended from Huguenot emigrants." There seems to be many ideas of the originality of the term Huguenot. Guyot says: "From Hugon, the popular hobgobling of France." Another says: "From a gate in Tours called Hugon." Others: "From the first words of their original protest or confession of faith,

Hue-nos-venimus, etc. The name took rise in 1560 and began to be known as such in 1561. Huguenot, properly diminutive of Hugon—Hugo, originally a heretic and conspirator of this name (Eccl. Hist). Davila and other historians say this nickname was given because of their meeting in the night time in vaults and caves, etc., near the gate Hugon, while some have said — from a French and faulty pronunciation of the German word Edignossen signifying confederates. These were called Eignots, whence Huguenots. Prof. Mahn in his Etymoligische Untersuchun quotes different derivations of this word. The term refugees was first applied to the French Protestants who, by the revocation of the edict, were constrained to fly from persecution and take refuge in foreign countries. Thousands sought America. Tradition states our ancestor was a Huguenot or refugee. It seems probable to suppose he might have been such, although we have no positive evidence of it. Tradition also says he was found (while in the care of his flock acting the part of a shepherd) reading Watts' Hymns, and fled fearing the penalty.* Is it not fitting that we should call up pride that we descended from one who filled such a place as father and ancestor, and with others help form the principles of such a government as we now have, resulting in civil and religious liberty. If he came here as has been handed down, he came to worship in his own way — away from their persecution. I dedicate the entire volume to the dear memory of my beloved mother (and the Fillow family generally), Phebe, daughter of Lewis P. and Lydia (Morehouse) Fillow, for whose love and devotion I owe a great debt of thought and reverence. The origin of the name Fillow is again in the dark and we can only conjecture. There seems to be no doubt our ancestor came from France. Let us look there for its origin. We find fils (pronounced fee or fees), a son, but this is a prefix. The old Normans, according to Arthur, prefixed fitz (a son) the same as fils in French and filius in Latin — as Fitz William, son of William, hence could not have had its origin in this word in either language. Filo, filea, filid (d silent) in the Gaelic is a bard, poet or historian—Greek, a friend. Filey or Filley gained its name from a town in England.

* "Isaac Watts printed at London, 1707, 'Hymns and Spiritual Songs. —[Appleton's Enc.] As he was at Norwalk in 1700 this tradition is probably groundless.

Arthur in his work, "Origin of Surnames," * does not include this name, nor have I been able to find its mention in my researches and treatises on surnames. They seem strangely silent respecting it. I have never yet found we could claim a part of French nobility or extensive or prominent actorship in American history. Yet our ancestors have left a few land-marks which are remaining undisturbed, and signatures which may be found in the records of New England, and the position which we find them indicate to us the prominence of these subjects. If we fall short of nobility's honor we are discounted little on acconnt of misconduct or misdemeanor, and we claim at least to be generally honest, and prudence has cast no shadow on their name. The circle of society which this family occupies generally is the middle class. We have, of course, a sprinkling of poor among us and also some termed rich, but they are generally of fair means and estates, gaining a good livelihood. Many have and do hold positions of honor and trust. The family of descendants are mostly of the class industrious and prudent people. Very many of Fillows, Philos and Philleos have preserved the even tenor of their way as quiet agriculturalists, living to a good and hale old age. Many of them are distributed in the shops and factories, schools, etc.—"Sons of labor, good and true." Partial baldness seems to have been a characteristic of the family, especially in the James and John branches. We can show many a broad-shouldered and strong man, and no exhibitions of dwarfishness, a feature so disliked by some. We have very few who present the silvery crown even at an advanced age, yet the author had "silver threads" at thirty years of age. But we have to rest this upon the other strain of blood (Nash), for which they are noted. Occasionally we see the auburn hair, and even golden tresses, adorn the heads of some. Instances of longevity are frequent. Like the Jews, the Fillow family feel an ancestral pride in industry and in fostering these hereditary habits, and from this they are possessed of virtue, reliability, strength of character and prosperity.

* A surname is an additional name added to a proper or given name for sake of distinction, and so called, we are told, because originally written over the other name. From French Surnom or Latin Supernomer signifying above the name. Soon after the diffusion of Christianity among the nations of Europe their Pagan names were laid aside and they took on Hebrew names; as families increased many were found bearing the same name as John, James, etc., and it was necessary to add as above stated. They find their origin from the estate or residence of the first occupant, or some personal peculiarity, particular circumstance attending birth or infancy, quality of body or mind, good wishes of parent, objects in nature, beasts, trees, flowers, valor, skill in war, color, complexion, color of hair, dress, ridicule, epithets of contempt, etc., etc. Wm. Arthur, according to Camden, says: "this began to be taken up in France about the year 1000."

Historian Froude says: "There are but three ways of living — working, begging or stealing — and he who is not doing the one is doing the other." This family seem to have chosen the former, and are not ashamed to work. Nearly every profession are represented. We have the fact that the many descendants of John Fillow, the French emigrant, have arrayed themselves, not like Solomon in his glory, but as able divines, physicians and the different professions, while many follow the science of agriculture. Perhaps the medical faculty claim a prominency of those in professions. Some were peculiarly sweet singers. A strain of poetry is seen. An asthmatical trouble is observed, especially in the fourth, sixth and seventh generations. The spelling of the surname Fillow has created some controversy, being spelled so many different ways. The early records indicate that each recorder, scribe or clerk used his own idea about spelling names and seemed to write phonographically or as the name sounded when spoken. It is found spelled differently in the same document. There seems to be no settled orthography for proper names, especially surnames. I find the same person signing his name twice in the same article spelled differently. Such enigmas are puzzling to the searcher who wishes to identify the signature. Webster says : " Bad as the orthography of the present day is, it is order itself compared with a few centuries ago, even in proper names." They are found recorded in great multitudes of forms ; several variations in the same manuscript. Leicester subscribed his own name eight different ways, and Villers is spelled fourteen different ways in deeds of that family. The family Mainwaring 131 variasions, all drawn from authorized documents. This name appears eighteen different ways, as Fillow, Filliow, Filland, Filiod, Filliod, Filli, Fillo, Fillioe, Filo, Feleho, Filliod, Filliand, Fillio, Philo, Philleo, Phillo, Phillow, Philow, on deeds and records refrrring to this family, and every one of these names that I have found in America can be traced direct to John Fillow, as their ancestor and progenitor, excepting less than a half dozen unclassified, and one Chas. Philo, etc. [See unnumbered at the end of the book] Middle names did not appear generally until 1800 or after, and frequently several names appear exactly alike. This sometimes makes confusion to the searcher. If any mistake is found, especially in the first, second or third generation, the author would like to obtain the correct name or date, due proof of it being given. Liebig once said, "Show me a man who makes no mistakes and I will show you a man who has done nothing." A volume of this kind certainly would be incomplete that did not give more than passing notice of the religious principles which are the foundation of all society. The religion of the first and second generation were of course Congregational. The third and fourth generally were members and attended the M. E. church, but the Presbyterian, Episcopal and Baptist churches are at present numerously represented by their descendants. I must express my regret that, through carelessness, the old Congregational records of the church at Norwalk, Ct., were destroyed (as is stated) by rats, being left in an old chest. They undoubtedly would have spoken intelligence to me, as the early families appear to have attended and were members of this church. In this case we believe it has never been claimed the three-brothered story of emigration to this country, as this is the general tradition of families.* I can see no better place to express my sincere thanks to any and all who have assisted me in any way. Alanson K. Philleo, Rock Island, Ill., (now dead) for much valuable information and MSS. sent me through the mail,

* Hinman says: "There are not found in the whole colony of Connecticut but four cases where three brothers came to this colony in the early settlements, except they were children who came with their parents.

written in 1844 at the dictation of his father, then sixty-nine years of age; Mrs. Chas. K. Whipple, Brookline, Mass.; Mrs Calvin W. Philleo, Suffield, Ct., (since dead); Miss Libbie A. Philo, Waterford, N. Y., Mrs. Adna Wood, West Burlington, N. Y.; Nelson D; Adams, General Land Office, Washington, D. C.; Maj. W. H. Webster, Rev. Dept., Washington, D. C.; Dr. H. K. Olmstead, Hartford, Ct.; Daniel Malona, Fairfield, Ct.; John E. Morris, Hartford, Ct., and the many others with whom I have called upon and corresponded, and which have been invaluable to me. To them all I am very thankful for their service and entertainment. In conclusion, allow me to say, may all who bear this noble name (Fillow, Philo, Philleo or variations) and descendants appreciate its worth and, catching the inspiration of its probable or possible birth, live to know and love (for Phil means love each other." * Chas. W. Baird, of Rye, N.Y., says: "The name occurs among the names of French Huguenot Refugees in the City of New York, though not in connection with the baptismal name, John. There are families of the name Filleau in France. The name is written in French Fillou, there is no w in the French Alphabet. The initial letter is F, and not Ph, which is probably a corruption." He says: "The spellings of the name differ, for the French were as careless as the English of that period (before or about 1700) with regard to the orthography of proper names," and probably was as much so about spellings of surnames. He finds "Pierre (Peter) Filleux or Filliau mentioned in the early records of New York (1693 and 1697).

A French biographical dictionary translates and pronounces the name Filleau as Fillow. Wm. L. Sherwood, of Newark, N. J., says of the name: "I think Filliot or Folliot is probably the original name, and Richard Folliot is said in Glover's roll to have borne de gouly (gules) ung (a) bende d'argent." The accompanying engraving as given by J. R. Plauche, Pursuivant of Arms is not a full coat of arms as you see, which would need crest, helmet, shield and motto, but I give this shield not claiming it to belong to this family, but at the suggestion of Wm. L. Sherwood I insert as probably, or possibly, this family's original name as above stated.

FOLLIOT.

The Hon. J. W. Dean, librarian of N. E. Historic Genealogical Society, Boston, Mass., says: "Sir Bernard Burke's General Armory" contains the name Philler—"Sa three cingue foils ar," and also Philler or Philer—"Sa three cingue foils betw nine crosses crosslet ar." J. T. Watson of Norwich, N. Y., says: "Philo–Philleo, etc., originated in the Netherlands and, hence, is of Flemish extraction and no name approximating to any of these appear in English books on heraldry. W. N. Rieu of Leiden, secretary of commission, "Pour L'Histoire Des Eglises Wallon- nes" remarks: "This is occupied with the history of the Huguenots. A great number of them passed in the Netherlands and was friendly received by the Protestant French Church, which is always called Walloon Church, because the first Walloon protestants who arrived from the Walloon Provinces to the north provinces, gave their name the church where divine service is still held in the French language. All the births and marriages are found in the register of the Walloon Church, are copied by us. I have looked for the names you speak of and only find the single marriage of Giles Filo to Jennie Medae, 4 Feb., 1748, at Dalpem, Belgium."

"Among the French Protestants who came to Boston, in Massachusetts, were Adam de Chezeau, a native of the Isle of Ré, Ezéchiel Carré, the pastor of the Narragansett Colony, and Pierre and Daniel Ayrault, who accompanied him, were from the same place. Nicolas Filoux and Paul Collin, ancestors of the families that settled in Connecticut, were inhabitants of the island."

"Nicolas Pierre Filoux, fled from the Isle of Ré in 1685. (Archives Nationales) Nicolas Fillou, natif de l'Ile de Ré, en France, died in New York, March 1, 1690 (records of the French Church in New York). Pierre, perhaps a son of Nicolas, was in New York in 1697. Possibly the ancestor of the Fillou or Philo family of Norwalk, Conn., reported to be of Huguenot descent." Probably this last supposition is formed from my inquiries of him relating to the Fillow family. We hardly think it possible the above Nicolas Pierre, or Vincent were related to this family as these names were not repeated in after generations as was the custom at that time.

Vincent Fillou signed his name with thirty-seven others, Sept. 10, 1704, to pay the widow of the late deceased pastor "one whole year's salary" (Records, French Church, New York).

In the following work those that have and are bearing the name of Fillow are mostly confined to Fairfield County, Ct. Those who spell their name Philo mostly originated in New York and Pennsylvania while Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Ohio, Minnesota, etc., also hold various families of this name, which variation originated with Nathan (see No. 12). And those who took the form Philleo, and which found its origin in Samuel (see No. 3), then of New York State. Now Illinois, Ohio, Connecticut, Nebraska and other states are sprinkled with families of this name.

EXPLANATION OF ARRANGEMENT.

The consecutive numbers on the left-hand margin of the page are individual numbers which each descendant has. And those numbers are carried forward in rotation to the right-hand margin, following which are mentioned their children. Also a number opposite the line where you find an individual number will be the eldest child's number on the left in the next generation.

FIRST GENERATION.

1. John Fillow was undoubtedly born in [2 France, but exactly when will probably never be known. Artemas† judges "he was 98 years old when he died, which was about 1765;" if so, he was born 1667. Now he died 173$\frac{3}{4}$, as probate records show. If he was 98 when he died, he must have been born 163$\frac{5}{6}$. The first date is most probable, but if he was not 98 when he died, but would have been had he lived until 1765, then he was 66 when he died. Probably he was about 33 years of age when he came to America, now a land of freedom, and in it he found a second country. Artemas says "He came from the southern part of France." Another tradition: "He came from Paris and was a glove maker." Still another: "He was a shepherd boy, and being discovered reading 'Watts Hymns" ‡

* John (Hebrew) signifies the Grace of God.

† See No.

‡ Hurd says: Dr. Isaac's version of the Psalms and Hymns did not come into use until a later day than 1729."

fled for fear of being severely persecuted or perhaps beheaded." (See Introduction.) Of his occupation in America I know nothing; but tradition tells us "He was a weaver," and his inventory shows a loom, many set of reeds, little wheel, great wheel, etc., showing this to be possibly correct. To substantiate him as a glove maker, an account book of his is said to have been seen after his death and translated by a Frenchman, which stated this to be an account of his business in France as glove maker. The book was carried west by Enos Fillow (86), and probably lost. Of his emigration or arrival to this country nothing positive has yet been discovered. Hutton's history with his list of emigrants from 1600 to 1700, or Savage's, have no such name recorded. If the tradition of shepherd boy is correct he might have went to the British Colonies as many others did and emigrated under an assumed name*.

The trouble of King James fleeing to France and there stirring up a revolution against England, commenced in 1688 and a treaty was not formed until Dec, 1697. These were times of great trouble. He then was probably about 30 years of age, only three years after he appears as land holder in Norwalk, Conn., and two years later the French and Indian war broke out which lasted eleven years. If he fled to escape the persecutions in France, soon after his arrival here he experienced times when political contests disturbed this country. Pirates were infesting the seas; all religious sects were persecuted here, except the Church of England, by unprincipled men in authority. But from 1713 until his death (173¾)

* Joseph Platt, a French refugee, settled at Norwalk 1699, and seven or eight others among the first settlers of that place, it is said, although they came from England, were French refugee.

the country was comparatively in a quiet state. Of his personal engagements in those early beginnings in America and concerning his history we must consent to remain much in ignorance. Could we go back to the time of his birth in France, circumstances of his departure from his parents to a foriegn land of strangers, then we could perhaps sympathize more deeply with our earliest ancestor in this land. Artemas says he came to America about 1720 with his wife and three sons, John, Samuel and Stephen. This is incorrect, as a "John Ffillio" bought four acres of land in Norwalk, Oct. 25, 1700,* which was probably one of the original grants of home lots, as it was the same amount of land (for these lots were about four acres large), and was "bounded or butted north by Elixax and Samuel Handford; west, by country road; east, by common land neere the banck of the coafe† (cove)."‡ His name does not appear in "ye estates of land and accomodations of ye town," Jan. 1, 1671, nor "estates of commonge of the inhabitants," Jan. 3, 1687, nor in the "Poll of voters," 1694. His second deed says: "John Fillioe, of Norwalk, buys land in 'Indian field' § on the 'brow of the hill,' Mar. 31, 1707–8." In September, same year, he received a deed "in the sixth y^r of the reign of our Sovereign Lady Ann, Queen of England." Dec. 29, 1710, the town grants liberty to Wm. Sturdevant, Jonathan Wood, Richard Cosier, Andrew Lyon, John Fillio and Thos. Austin § Voted in Norwalk, Mar. 19, 1671, that Chestnut Hill is to be reserved for a field for the Indians if they need it, so probably at that time it was suitable only for Indian hunting. But 1672, I find Samuel Smith bought a parcel of land in "Indian Field."

to "sitt upon ye seat joining to the Little pue, in ye north-east corner of the meeting house and their wifes to sit on the opposite seat, joining to ye North West corner of ye meeting house." In Dec., 1686, it was voted "that the seating be according to the lists of estates which (was) pay'd in defraying the charges about building and finishing said house." It is probable this mode of seating was kept up. Wm. Sturdevant is mentioned twenty-three years before as having £160, and on roll of voters, 1694. Richard Cosier's estate in 1687, was £50, and on roll of voters 1694. As John Fillow did not appear on these rolls it seems reasonable to presume he did not come to Norwalk until after this date, 1694, or was not 21 years old at this time. The seat above mentioned was in the second meeting house, which, according to Halls' History of Norwalk, was built on the old site.* This second church was built 168$\frac{0}{1}$, and was located on East avenue, near the N. Y. & N. H. R. R. crossing. This house had no bell to call worshippers together, but was done by beating the drum.

It is probable that John and Sarah went to church on horseback. She riding on a pillion behind him. Let us imagine them coming to church, both on "Old Dobbin," they arrive; he dismounts; helps Aunt Sarah alight; she enters and is seated. He hitches the pony and returning takes his seat allotted him. This is fancy but in this is sometimes even found interest and the imaginative picture implants in our forgetful brain that we have descended from ancestors who were church-going people. Nothing more is known of him until his death. Of his marriage, it is of course very probable that he was married before Dec.

* The first one was built 1659.

29, 1710, by the seating of "their wives" at that time. His wife's maiden name is not known, but her christian name was Sarah, as appears on deed, Feb. 26, 1734–5, given by her as widow with seven children to John Fillow, Jr. (her son), their right in John Fillow's estate. It would seem that a little description of his final settlement would not be inappropriate. It was on the "lower part of Chestnut Hill," about theer miles from Norwalk borough. His house was situated on the west side of the highway, "on the brow of the hill," which is the east road to Wilton, about one-half mile south of the town line dividing the two towns. Standing on the old site and looking westerly into what is known as "Toilsome," about one-half mile away, there is seen the "Gunning Mansion," a grand structure surrounded by its romantic scenery; its selected site is too on another ridge, and on its southern slope opposite our subject's residence, a vale only intervening. Looking south, we trace the slightly winding road nearly to the village of modern Norwalk. Looking easterly, we view the plain fields and the Newtown Turnpike conveying you to the old settlements of a branch of the third and fourth generations and descendents. North of opposite (where Eben. Gilbert now lives, having built a new house on the old site), which was the homestead given to his grandson by his son "for good will," where he lived and died (John 3d). John 2d remained in his father's house after his death and probably died there. Many years later its was abandoned as a dwelling and used as a workshop. But many years have elapsed since a timber could be seen.* A few feet north stands a

The next we hear about him or his estate is "at a Probate Court held at Fairfield, Ct., 13, Dec. 1733.* John Fillo, of Norwalk, Ct., was app° adm^r on ye estate of John Fillo, late of Norwalk, dec^d. Test., W^m. Burr, clerk." Bonds given by John Fillio and Christopher Ellot. Inventory returned Jan. 7, 173¾, this John Jr., signed his name John Fillow, but his bill of expenses says John Filliand. The following is a true copy of the "inventory of ye estate of John Fillo, dec^d: Ye lands near ye south end of Chestnut hill, £67, 10*s.*; two acres and wood of land, £15, 15*s.*; cow, £6; a cow, £5—£26, 15*s.*; a half an ox, £3, 18*s.*; a horse, 2*s.* sheep, 12*s*; pork, £4, 17*s*; to wheat, £4; two swine, £3, 0*s*; chest, £3; bread-tray, 2*s.*, 6*d.*; a small tray, 1*s.*, 6*d.*; (bolster) cloth, 5*s.*; two blankets, 2*s.*—8*s.*, 6*d.*; two sheets, 20*s.*; two pillows, 2*s.*, 6*d.*; one bedstead and cord, 7*s.*; a bedticking, 18*s.*; pair sheets, smith, a string was passed through the wooden latch and then through a hole in the door a short distance above the latch (which was put out in the day time and taken in at night), which being pulled on raised the latch. Hence the expression "The latch string is always out for you." The fire was accidentally out, and at our approach the tinder box was brought into use; this resembled a tin pint cup with a lid (an inner lid covered the tow or tinder). John took a rough steel and a flint stone and after a while produced a spark in the tinder from whence the bellows were used on this, and the prepared shavings were soon lighted. Aunt Sarah presented us with some ginger-bread and doughtnuts until she could prepare some bean porridge soup. The warming pan hung in the corner; pewter platters set on the shelves (made of huge plank) shone like silver. We didn't wait for soup but returned home satisfied with what we had seen.

SECOND GENERATION

CHILDREN OF JOHN AND SARAH ( ) FILLOW I.

2 I. John was probably born before 1713, as [10 his son John was born about 1735; allowing one year for marriage (1734). He was 21 years old being appointed administrator on his father's estate 183¾, this would make him born before 1713. He was probable married before 1726, as he had three sisters married before 173¾. If he was 21 in 1726, he was born 1705. Artemas says: "He was 85 years old when he died, which occurred about 1789." He deeds land Aug. 17, 1789, and his son, John Jr., acts as witness. If he died 1789, and was 85 he was born 1704. Artemas thinks he was born in France. To this we cannot deny, but if so (which we do not think), he certainly was born before 1696. He also remarks "he was born 1704." He was the eldest son as shown by deeds. He married Phebe (Olmsted), what her maiden name was we have no positive knowledge; but Joseph Olmsted's will dated Jan. 27, 174⅞ (Probate record, Fairfield, Ct.), he mentioned daughter, —— wife of John Filliand, and it is probable it was this John. He first appears administrator on his father John's estate, Dec. 13, 1733. The original bill he presented exists in the Probate's office at Fairfield, and is headed: "Estate of John Filland, Dr., to John Filland.' The inventory 'of ye lands—goods and chattles of John Filliow.'" But his autograph at the bottom is John Fillow. At the settling of the estate, his brothers and sisters quit. claims their rights in their father's estate, 26, Feb. 173⅘. In 1735 he buys his sisters rights in the personal property. In 1748–50–6–7 he buys and sells land all on "lower end of Chestnut Hill." 20th of Feb., 1764, John Feleho and Phebe, his wife, gives to their son John a homestead*—"lower end of Chestnut Hill," Norwalk, and same day to his son Jas, a homestead. These he signs John Fillow. Mar. 14, 1786, he gives to his son Stephen, house and fruit trees with seven acres precisely at Popple Plain." It is said he gave to each of his sons a homestead, but I have failed to find Nathan's. In 1789 he disappears from the records and presumably he died soon after. I have also failed to find any settlement or distribution of his estate. He gives a deed Aug. 17, 1789, and his son "John, Jr.," witnesses it.

3 II. Samuel. Artemas thinks he was born [17 about 1706, in France. If in France he was born before 1700. It is certain he was born before 1714, as he deeded to his brother John his right in his decd father's estate, Feb. 26, 1734–5, he was then 21 years old. He married Miss Abigail Fountain, of Norwalk, Ct.,† about 1731 (it is said), but must be incorrect, as their first child was born about 1736. and his second, 1749; so it is probable she was born nearer his birth,

* House and barn, six acres of land and salt meadow at Great Marsh.
† I have not found any by name of Abigail in the early Fountain famly of that place.

at least before 1718. They had four sons and one daughter. Their first two were born at Norwalk, and the remainder at Pawlingstown (now Dover), Duchesse Co., N. Y. He settled on what is known as "East Mountain," or "Preston Mountain," the exact place was about one-half mile south-east from "Tory Hole." (I visited the old place; nothing remains but a few foundation stones. There is evidence of an old road near it, but traces of it are lost as it should intersect the main mountain road. This place is situated one-half mile from any dwelling on the West and many miles any other way. Let us think how he moved his family there in that early period. It seems he selected the most fertile part of Dover, then, for the Historian tells us, in its early settlement the Plains was worth 6*d.* per acre, while on East Mountain 1*s.* per acre, near the time of his removal; it was at the end of King George's war (1745), which closed 1748. Then the French and Indian war,† and in 1765 the famous Stamp Act was enforced; this added to taxation, etc., which was terrible—robbing the children from food—and two years later Parliament imposed duties on tea, etc. He probably lived through the Revolutionary War. Artemas thinks he died about 1798, at Dover, and his wife soon after. Luther (alive 1883) says he died about 1793, "before my birth" (1795)." His descendants claim he spelled his name Philleo, which they also retain. I cannot say otherwise, but his father, as you see, spelled his name Fillow.‡

4 III. Stephen. Of this person I know nothing, except Artemas writes: "He came to America with his father; born in France about A. D., 1708, and settled at Norwalk, Ct." John 2d, had a son by that name, and I fear Artemas thought him son of John 1st, for he lived in Norwalk and had no children, and he fails to give any children of him, or any further history. No such person appears on records of Norwalk or Fairfield that I find, and his name does not occur in settling John 1st's, estate, in which they all appear to quit claim their rights to John 2d, the elder brother. It is possible he died before 1733, unmarried. John 1st, had two grand children named Samuel and Stephen, who might have been named after these two brothers in 2d generation by the same name, as was the custom in those days to keep the name in the family.

5 IV. Judith. Of her history I can give but little. She only appears in the quit-claim deed to her brother John, her right in her father's estate, like his sisters following her, Feb. 26, 173$\frac{4}{5}$. Was born before 1714, and was married before 173^4, to Christopher Elliot.* I have not been able to trace her further than this.† (Ellott or Elliot.)

6 V. Sarah born before 1714; married Job [22 Porson,‡ of Waterbury, Ct., before 173$\frac{4}{5}$. There appears on the Waterbury land records, 1729, the first mention of any by that name, Stephen, jr., Porson, and discloses these facts: Job was a son of Stephen jr.; that

* Supposed to signify the son of Elias Heliat Welsh, a hunstman, a persuer (Wm. Arthur, Astor Library).

† No family by that name occurs on the early records of Norwalk, and the presumption is: if he then resided there, he settled elsewhere. There seem to be many families in New England by this name, but no trace of Christopher is found. I have thought he might have been a brother of Jared (Rev.) who was grandson of John, of Roxbury, Mass. He preached at Killingwood where he died 1763, age 78 years.

‡ This name, like most names, has variations on the same record as Porson, Person, Poirson, Pearson, or Parson.

he had two brothers, Thomas and John. Thomas in 1731, resided at Woodbury, Fairfield Co., Ct.; he deeds his honored father at Derby, Ct.; he then appears at Norwalk, Ct., and owns a homestead there, June 20, 1749; sells land there Jan. 24, 1749–50, and then disappears from the records. John of Milford, Ct., received a deed of his father, Stephen, Jr., 1737. Then appears at Norwalk, Ct. His "father in-law Benjamin Scribener, of Norwalk, Ct.," gives him a deed of one acre, 1749, which he sells 1752; buys land 175$\frac{3}{4}$, then disappears from Norwalk records. But appears in Stratford, Ct., 1758.* The 5th of Dec., 1732 "The 6th year of our Lord, George of Great Britain King," Stephen Jr., of Derby, Ct, gives to his son Job, of Derby, his natural life, and then to his heirs, land at Scott's Hill, Waterbury, Ct., by "estemation 90 acres," bounded south-west by Derby Line. Job buys land (14 or more acres), Jan. 7, 173$\frac{4}{5}$. He had at least two children, and possibly more. He probably owned in all about 114 acres, and Samuel his son sells his right (which was 38 acres), indicating there might have been three children. From Samuel's deed we learn that Job dies at Derby, before Dec. 17, 1766, it says "late of Derby." We find on Norwalk Records, a deed from Sarah Parsons to Samuel Fillio, in which she is mentioned as widow of Job Parsons, Oct. 21, 1741.

7 VI. Catherine born before 1714; married Thomas Jelliff, before Feb. 26, 173$\frac{4}{5}$. A Thomas Jelliff, appears on the Land Records at Norwalk, Ct., 1741; lived there 1745, and Jan. 24, 174$\frac{7}{8}$, he enters a

"Dun yearling heffer with a slit in ye end of the near ear, a cross on ye off ear, and half-penny ye foreside ye same ear," found dead, claimed by Jonathan Nash.* He deeds, 1761–1786, and resided at Norwalk, then. It is probable he died about that time, as a Thomas Jr., is mentioned up to 1772. Thomas Jr., of Norwalk, 1763 (at Stony Brook) "ye 4th yr. of ye reign. . . Lord George ye 3d. . . . King." In 1765 deeds at "Old Hill," 1769, sold at Stony Brook; buys land at Poplar Plain. Mr. Albert Bresse of that place in 1882, says: Thomas lived here fifty or sixty years ago (thinks this Thomas Jr. mentioned above) and his son Willis moved to Crown Point, N. Y., thence to Wisconsin. He says: "Gillette or Jelliff," if Jelliff was originally Gillette, this name from Guillot, the French diminutive for William (Wm. Arthur, on surnames). The family may have come from Gillette, town in France. Gillette, son of Giles. I can find no Jelliff who can trace their ancestry to Thomas, nor is he mentioned on early records of Norwalk.

CHILDREN OF JOHN AND PHEBE (OLMSTED) FILLOW[2].

10 I. John b. about 1735; m. Mar. 10, [24 1757, by Samuel Buckingham, at Greens Farms Parish (Ct.), Sarah Sherwood, b. 1735; d. Dec. 13, 1811. He d. after 1796. He is spoken of as junior, as early as 1760 to 1775. His homestead was located at lower end of Chestnut Hill.* He is remembered as one of the thriving, active agriculturalists. Grandson of John 1st, was 3d John in direct line, and here this line was broken, but in a latter generation we have this name preserved.

11 II. James born 1737, at Norwalk, Ct.; mar. [27 Feb. 8, 1759, Mary† (Polly) daughter of Garner (or Gardner) Olmsted, born 1742; died Nov. 26, 1828. He died April 16, 1817. Of his history I shall differ somewhat from the late History of Fairfield County, for Mr. Hurd says: "He was probably the first of the name in America," died 1717, "aged 80; was a small boy at commencement of Revolution."

There succeeds him three named after him in direct line. John, Samuel, Nathan, James and Benjamin, seem to have been favorite names in this family. He was favorably known for his probity and manly worth, practical in attention to details, attended strictly to his own affairs, and never intruded himself into matters that did not strictly concern him. He could see no benefit from searching into other people's business, but made enough of his own. His characteristic energy was displayed on the farm, and in his labors was always cheerful, having an appropriate story for the occasion. He only received a common school education, but had this been extended he would probably have figured more frequently as a public man. The above traits brought to him, and his geneality secured the confidence of his many friends. Meetly helped by his industrious and saving wife, they by continual prudence accumulated a large estate for his time. He left for his children $11,149.09. He is remembered by several who knew him, and his generous nature responded to the various calls of charity, and was exceedingly accommodating. He is said to never let those who visited him for favors, finally leave without being supplied, although at first he gave little encouragement. Unassuming in his manners, frank, generous, kind-hearted and honorable. He was engrossed in the multifarious duties of an active agriculturist. He received his early training on the farm, and knew well the value of time, and personal effort to be successful. In his youth he had implanted habits of industry which he ever practiced in after years. He was a large land-holder, and his name is found frequently on the land records of his town. Feb. 20, 1764, his father gave him a homestead "in Wilton Parish," at "a place called Chestnut Hill," three acres, dwelling house and barn.* In his middle life he was a Loyalist. In the time of the Revolution, party spirits arose, and probably he had been learned to regard "our good King George the III as our Sovereign King," and as these Provincials (sometimes called such) were generally men of estates, expecting if the Continentals were unsuccessful their property would be confiscated (which probably would have been done), he adhered to the crown a supporter of royal authority. He was not a subsidy man, but failed to be as outspoken against the ruling authority as the Continentals. He was notified and cited with twenty others or more to appear before a committee appointed to show reason why their names should not be enrolled as "inimical persons," April 20, 1781. Whether he gave good reasons for not, does appear. These were trying times. This refers to a time when these persons did not come forward and say fight, but talked in fear the Revolutionists could not succeed, and it was feared they were dangerous to the Independent cause and called "inimical persons." This loyal element in that trying hour was much more general than our common history shows. In all of the towns it existed, and in many was serious. Mr. Leaming of the Episcopal Church of Norwalk, preached much on the wickedness of resisting the King; he had many believers that this was right, and according to his creed and preaching the Revolutionists "were only a pack of Rebels." Col. Read of Redding, was commissioned and iustructed to "lead forth the regiment to encounter, pursue. and destroy by force of arms all his majesty's enemies who shall at any time hereafter in a hostile manner attempt or encourage the invasion, detriment or annoyance of his colony." Rev. John Beach, writes: "I have warned my people against having concern with seditious tumults against the 'Stamp Act,' and with pleasure say I cannot discover the least inclination toward rebelling conduct in any of the church people." After the war was ended he was probably glad of independence. Artemas speaks of him thus: "I recollect him as being a very smart active man," as I have stated he never forsook the farm "the first of all mortal iudustries."

"By chase our long lived fathers earned their food,
Toil strung the nerves, and purified the blood;
He believed it was better to hunt in fields for health unbought,
Than fee the doctors for a nauseous draught,"—DRYDEN.

He is said to have been a man of good size, weighing about 175 pounds. He had acquired the habit of taking snuff, and he had a pocket of leather put in his jacket in which he kept it for handiness. In his religious faith, he was a strong Methodist.* In 1792, he signs a deed and which we reproduce his autograph:†

He was 52 years old when Gen. Washington became President; and was permitted to live through his administration and some years after. He again passed through another war (1812 called), and the Historian of Fairfield County states he was probably a soldier, but I don't know where he gets information to warrant even a probability. He lived to his four score years, and died with the good will and affection of all who knew him. He suffered from asthma for many years before his death. I have given his history as I have gained these facts (many of them) from those who personally knew him. He was buried at Poplar Plains, Westport, and has a suitable stone

MEMORY.

'Tis that powerful gift of nature, bears me back to infant years,
Memory's magic oft' assisting, draws my languid eyes with tears.
Protected by a tender Father, who was dear as life to me;
His daily prayers to heaven ascending, for his rising family.
But the counsel of a mother, shineth brighter far than gold;
More delicious than the honey, that is dropping from the comb.
I was blessed with that sweet counsel, e're my eyes could scarce conta in
But those lessons now are precious, for my heart doth them retain.
Precious moments oft I listened, to her closet day by day;
Bathed in tears she oft embraced me, saying child, you too, must pray.
Learn to love that precious Savior, faith in Christ removes the sting,
With pleasure change the clog of sorrow, for a lovely angel's wing

The cause of his going to Dover, it is said, was because he was persecuted by the Tories, for he was very enthusiastic in the cause of liberty, and was injured in the service as captain in the cavalry, but served all through the war. His name, however, does not appear on the rolls at Washington.

§ In those early days there was common land where all wishing to pasture cattle, horses, sheep, hogs, etc., did so, and to distinguish them they were marked and carefully registered on the town books, as much as trade marks of to-day. Horses were branded on the shoulder and sometimes on the ear.

 "I have searched the records of the Pension Office here, and find no such name." [William H. Webster, Chief Revolutionary Department, Washington, D. C.]

His two boys, Azor and Adams, 13 or 14 years old, were placed on picket, and to try them Nathan came upon them horseback, at dusk, and they demanded the sign twice, when he was convinced they would not run, he didn't wait for the third call but made himself known. When he settled in Sa. co., he bought 200 acres of land, which was well situated, with only four acres of wood and the rest fine land. For it he gave 20*s.* per acre; he soon after added fifty acres more. It was situated about one-half mile east of Middletown village, a little south-west of Nehemiah, Philos present residence; here he gave his five sons fifty acres apiece. Artemas says: "He had three sons born in Norwalk, and when he moved to Dover he lived with my father Phineas Phillow."

It has been truly noticed that elegant traits of character were formed in the early settlement of this country, and he transmitted these to many of his descendants. We find in the struggle of the Revolution (and they were eventful years) he participated and chose the side of liberty. About the close of war or soon after, he emigrated to Dover. This must have needed great determination to make this journey in those times with the limited means of travel. Thinking as he did, imagine his feelings when he probably went out a few lots back of his house and saw the British* in brilliant uniform marching back from a barbarous scout (the news of the results of their doings not yet reached their ears), on their return journey toward their waiting boats. 13 IV. Stephen, born about 1750; married Mary (Molly) ——, probably before 1786, as his father John gives to him, Mar. 14 of that year, for good will, "at Popple Plain," seven acres precisely, bounded east by highway* being divided by the preambulating line of N. and Wilton, used now for a pasture lot and a few stones mark the house foundation, and an old pear tree marks it as an old homestead.† Jan. 20, 1787 (less than one year), he sells this gift to Wm. Jelliff, for £40. His brother James so reprimanded Jelliff for taking advantage of him—buying this gift homestead for so small amount—that Jelliff sold it to James for what he gave, which money bought Stephen's last residence, it is said. He was none to careful about telling the truth, and his brother James called him "Lying Tun," generally called "Old Tun." The same day Stephen sells to Jelliff, he buys land in Wilton Parish, four acres, which must have been situated across the D. & N. R. R. track, near the third crossing above the station (Cannons), Wilton, Ct. The deed reserves all right in all minerals, etc., and was probably part of the silver mine property. Nine days after he sells twelve acres, which probably included this property. Apr 30, 1788, his last sale, John Gregory gives his consent to sell, being conservator in law, to Stephen.

Apr. 23, 1789, Reuben Olmsted, Jr., sells Stephen Fillio for £15, at Wilton Parish, six acres bounded north by Ridgefield line, west by New York State line, being in the very north western point of Wilton. It is now occupied by Thad's Scott, and was said to have been sold after the widow's death by one Charles Rodgers* to Mr. Adams and he to present owner. I have not been able to find any of their children, and it is probable they had none, which fact perhaps we might rejoice over, as we could not expect to find their descendants too elevating. This is the only Fillow I have found strange in his mind from childhood! Said one who knew him: "once he was not outdone; a tin peddler came along and bored Stephen to buy of him, and insisted on it, and said:" "I have everything you may want." He finally visited his cart and after looking it all over he stepped back and gave a look of disappointment, when the peddler said: "What was you looking for? I have got it." He replied: "I wanted a tin wheel-barrow." The peddler had spent so much time, was disgusted with the joke and mounted his cart and drove away. He died about 1821. His father requested that at the death of Stephen, if his wife survived him, they should not disturb her, but let her live in the old place as long as she lived. She was born about 1746 (according to the best remembrance of those who knew her). She was also strange and sometimes funny; many stories are told of her. The young of the place would visit them to hear what perhaps no one of better and mature judgment would have been entertained by. She was very saving, and while Stephen and herself in a party, were returning from Ridgefield, his hat blew off, and she remarked: "There goes Stephen's new hat; he hasn't had it but seven years." He probably was buried in a small cemetery west of the highway about 100 rods, near their residence. ection with them, showing she rated the rest of the family quite below par. One morning she visited a neighbor and said she had tried in vain to build a fire but the smoke have driven her out. The friend accompanied her home and found, during the night, a limb from an over-hanging tree had fallen, completely covering the chimney top. This was pointed out to her, and she exclaimed: "Lord a Massy! I knew there was something wrong." She married second John Rodgers, who died about 1835–6. She died about 1841, aged about 95 years; was buried in the cemetery above spoken of by Jared Nash, of Ridgefield. The coffin was a plain pine box with no lining in it. She probably died in a fit, as she was found sitting up in her chair dead, with her dog close beside her, in this same homestead. about one-fourth mile from the road, and only a path leading to it.

14 Chloe born ———; m. ——— Potter. There is no positive evidence she was daughter of above; if so her neice was probably named after her. We have traditionary evidence such was the fact, and I find Sarah Potter, Deborah, John and Stephen Fillow, are mentioned as each owning one-sixth part of two pieces of land undivided, situated at Chestnut Hill and Duck Pond. This was probably property left by their father John. It is possible Sarah Fillow second, married a Potter, but hardly probable, as the record reads of her marriage, Sarah Fillow. Deborah's grandson says: (probably informed by his mother Nancy, born 1800) "Jan es had a sister Sarah, married a Potter, who moved on the Susquehannah River; he died and she married second time." Possibly it should have been her first husband died and she, second, married ——— Potter.

Stephen died before Apr. 26, 1797, as there was distributed to his heirs from his father's estate their share. Sarah's neice (Susannah) said Stephen was in the Revolutionary service, and Sarah kept her cow farrow for five years, which was a great help to her.

"Samuel Phillow" appears in "Archives of the State of New York. The Revolution," p. 447, Vol. 1. This is evidently Samuel (No 17) as at least two of his brothers served in the Revolutionary War. In the list of New Yorkers who served in the Revolution, (Albany State Library) Samuel Phillo appears a private in Capt. I. Vails Company, in Col. Morris Graham's Dutchesse County Militia regiment, a regiment formed under resolution of Provincial Congress, July 16, 1776, to go into immediate service. It was not one of the numbered Dutchesse County regiments.

He served with Rangers.† Part of this service was under Capt. Valentine Wheeler, a Lieut. in company commanded by Capt. Van Deusen, both were Capt's in Col· Vanderburgh's Regt. It is probable his last service was in summer of 1781. He served at Horse-neck, White Plains, Fishkill, Peekskill and in some skirmishing, but most of his service was in the Militia on guard duty and "turning out on alarms." His son states he was called a "minute man." He used to banter his wife on subjects of her faith.‡ A correspondent writes me "I can hardly describe the poverty and baldness of the life I saw at his house, a rude log hut, earthen floor, a life entirely barren of any refinement institute the memories of my visit." It is thought he kept no family record. The Homestead is only marked by a few old apple trees and a few foundation stone. It was situated on Flat Rocks near a cold spring on the old road from E. Mountain to Kent, Ct., one-half a mile from any civilization now. He had a large peach orchard and grapes in abundance. It is now called by the owners "The Enoch place" § it is on "East" or "Preston Mountain" || three or four miles east of Dover Plains, N. Y. The Historian tells us it is 300 to 500 feet above the same. His grandchild says from my childhood recollection "he was a skillful talker."

Another informant adds "d. of Quick Consumption but the primary cause might have been poison."

The Pension Rec'd at Wash. D. C., declares his Bro. Enoch attended (on furlough) his funeral in the fall of 1777.

Calvin (No. 73) states: "He was a Tory in the Rev. fought under British Flag, rec^d 300 acr^s of land as bounty at Nova Scotia at the close of the war, the prejudices were so against the Tories, but eventually he returned to his family. Often have I heard them tell their war stories together (Father & him.) He was well paid for his treachery while my father rec^d only worthless continental money." Esther was burned to death, falling into the fire. A nephew now writes "She might have had two Husbands. They lived and d. on the Harrington Place on the N. Y. & Ct. state line."

in a good common support. The author visited the old place, her first res. and indeed it seemed hardly possible one could have been so cheerful as she was under that roof of theirs (her mansion). She was a great worker and never looked after the light end of a job. A story is told of her holding a pr. of steers her father was breaking: As she was holding them by the horns they started and he told her to "hold on my Frenchman" which she did until they had completely carried her over the fence. She frequently spoke of her French blood and said "that is what makes me so polite." Somewhat limited in book knowledge (having few advantages) used to remark, if, we can convey our thoughts to each other, that is all that is required." She was always prudent and learned her children to "eat their trencher clean." She could take her hand with many men in the field, and when 40 years old (a widow) Steward Haight (afterwards her son-in law) bound rye for her to rake, and she did not stop until she had raked 72 shock, and when the two cradlers finished she raked it in a sheaf as it left the cradle. She had the responsibility of ten chil., 8 of which lived to be over 70. A chair is still in existence kept by her dau. Mercy, that belonged to her mother Mary. Another story is told of her going to a lumber yard for a load of boards. It was rather a strange sight, (even then) to see a lady come for lumber. The lumberman called his man, joking her—said, it is customary to treat the loader. She said come to the hotel. She said to the bar tender here is a gentleman who wants me to treat him, give him his rum for he has helped me to load up. In ans. to the question "Why do you come for lumber," she ans. "It is necessary for some to work to keep from the bailiff's door." After her husband's decease "Aunt Chloe" continued the same life of cheerfulness and patiently waited the summons to follow her husband to the unknown world. She was loved and respected by her many friends. A poem was written by her sister Anna, while she was somewhat delirious and given Chloe a short time before her death, viz:

REFLECTIONS IN OLD AGE.

My muse awakes and shocks my frame,
While trembling on the spray;
I view the time allotted me,
Is almost rolled away.

My seventy years is at a close,
And borrowed time, I fear,
My lonely days, and dread repose,
Oft drowns mine eyes with tears.

Reflections on the many years,
That marked my sorrowed page,
My many conflicts mixt with fears,
My feeble mind engaged.

Full thirty years of my three score,
I've known a widows fear.
While children weep and duty pres't
I drop a mother's tear.

But He whose promise stands more firm,
Than heaven and earth and sea;
Hath said I am the widow's friend,
If they but trust in me.

We print the last verse of a poem composed by the same person.

Ah solemn thought my passion wakes,
Shall all my children dear;
When Christ his jewels shall make up,
On the right hand appear.
Oh precious hope it bears me up,
Through all my trials here;
That when kind Gabriel sounds the trump,
With joy all may appear.

She often penned the imageries of poetic inspiration, and her soul seemed to be imbued and often gave utterance filled with poetic strains. Many a rude poem has been found after her death and even while possessed with a partial delirious brain, she wrote several interesting poems. Indeed her thoughts teemed with rhymes. Some of her best poems have been destroyed; several are in the authors posession.

* He was a Stillwellite, a firm believer and follower. Ab. 1820, Rev. Wm. M. Stillwell, seceded from the M. E. ch. and organized a class in Georgetown, Ct., who believed in his peculiar faith of ch. policy, but still claimed to be methodists and their opponents called them Stillwellites. Ab. 1825 they held meeting in his barn—large attendance.

"FRIENDSHIP."

Listen my young companions, who know no social bliss,
My heart is turned for Friendship, (correct where ere I miss;)
For if I cannot find one, that will pledge to me their hand,
Upon the weeping willow, my silent harp I'll hang.

Were I in full possession, of beds of golden ore,
And did possess the Southern Isle's, that reach from shore to shore,
Did treasures lie like heaps of dust, or cluster's on the vine,
I'd leave them all and travel on, true Friendship for to find.

Could I be raised to honor. A royalist in state,
And have a train of servants, upon me for to wait,
Yea could I rise to honors height, and wear a splendid crown
Without the sweets of Friendship, all nature still would frown.

Had I a mansion gilded o'er, and did with lustre shine
I'd leave it like an empty cage, true Friendship for to find,
The mountains high I'll travel, nor scarcely stop to rest
And when I find that precious gem, I'll bind it my breast.

HOPE IN HEAVEN.

When pulse beats low and cheeks grow pale.
And storms of life are fiercely driven,
When fairest prospects quickly fail,
How sweet to have a hope in Heaven.

When lone and wandering far from home
No kind relief to us is given;
Oh! what would then of us become,
If we had not a hope in Heaven.

When friends that seem so near and dear,
Are from our bosoms swiftly riven,
And earths brightest joys in gloom appear
How sweet to have a hope in Heaven.

And when the end is drawing nigh
Of life through which we long have striven
And we again must droop and die
How sweet to have a hope in Heaven.

A SOLILOQUY.

My noble powers awake, awake, and hail the rising year ;
I've many duties to perform, I've very much to fear,
My care is great without, within, I find an empty space
For me to write I know not how, to fill that empty place.

Could I enlarge my scanty views, and raise my thoughts on high
And meet a seraph on the way, it would his power defy,
No faithful friend no earthly prince, can teach me what to do
I must confide in God alone and keep my rest in view.

Those wordly cares will fall asleep, amid my slumbering clay
And nought disturb my peaceful breast, I rise to endless day.
Could I behold that mansion high, which God himself prepared,
Before that Jesus came to die, that with him we might share.

A seat in glory with the blest, at God's right hand to dwell,
I'll cast my earthly care away, and bid it all farewell,
Lord give me strength to persevere, in wisdom's noblest way
And guide me by thy powerful hand, That I may never stray.

34 I. Azor b. 5 Mar. 1767,*at Norwalk, Ct., m. [145 Mary (Polly) Hurlbutt [dau of (Capt.) Dan'l (senior) of Wilton Parish, Norwalk, Ct.] † His name appears on N.

* Copy of Pension Rec'ds at Wash. D. C. b. at Norwalk, Ct., 5 Mar. 1767. In a supplemental statement alleges the writer of his declaration erred in the year and he was b. 1763. Copy of Family Rec'ds produced at Pension office says 1776 New Style. Azor states he enlisted June 1778, under Capt. Ozias Marvin for 1 year and continued by re-enlistment with a short interval to close of the War. His guard duty was on the sea coast at Norwalk and was in the fight when Norwalk was burned and at Stamford, Horse neck, Fairfield and Kings bridge ; and at taking of Fort Shongo, on L. I. This sea coast duty was performed by militia and the draft or enlistments were not usually over 60 ds. or 3 or 4 mos. and companies were classified in 2 or 3 classes, which alternated with each other in the duty, or companies of a Regt. alternated with each other. It has been suggested his entrance in service was when 15 yrs. old, but the family rec'ds he was b. 1766 and he states (pr. pension rec'd) June, 1778. If this statement is correct he was but 12 yrs. of age, for he alleges his service was a substitute for Edmund Tuttle and testifies to his serving in 1780, but no time prior is mentioned. Isaac Fillow also testifies of his serving in 1780. From this we are inclined to think he entered or went into service 1780 for a short term and was probably about 14 yrs old. "Enlistments at the age of 12 yrs. were not made, except in rare instances as Drummers" says Maj. W. H. Webster, U. S. Pension Office, W. D. C.

Mill City was originally Northumberland Co., which was established by act of March 21, 1772. By an Act of the General Assembly of Conn., in 1774 the inhabitants dwelling within the bounds of this Colony were constituted a distinct town, about 70 miles square. It embraced all the territory between the two rivers along the New York State line and from Athens to the Wyoming Valley, on the Susquehanna River. Representatives were sent from Wyoming to Conn. The inhabitants of this county was living under and governed by the "Blue Laws of Conn." Luzerne Co., formerly a part of Northumberland was established by Act Sept. 25, 1786 and named in honor of the Chevalier De La Luzerne, Minister from France. He fitted himself for a Baptist minister and was settled over a church in Amenia, N. Y. He was educated in New York. He removed to Suffield, Ct., and thence to Pawtucket, R. I.; there he remained about 3 years. He was a remarkable man and his power over audiences was almost unequaled. In his person was combined the minister and choir. He possessed a voice remarkable for clearness and sweetness, with an ear so true he seldom erred in the pitch with no other aid. He was a worker in the interest of an educated Baptist ministry in New York State. He spent much energy in getting libraries established for Baptist ministers; an indomitable worker and "burnt his candle at both ends." When about fifty years old, he was unfitted for preaching from overwork of the brain, but occasionally preached for many years. He was very strenuous about

* She was a woman of Abolition principle, and holds her sympathy yet, for she writes the author in 1882: "I have great hopes yet—may I live to see it—a college built on my farm for all classes and colors, particularly the children of the colored wanderers I want professorships of the highest order." In the autumn of 1831 she opened a ladies' boarding school at Canterbury Green, Windham county, Ct. Ellen D. Larnard, in her History of Windam, says Mrs. Philleo writes her a private letter as follows: "Being taught in early childhood the sin of slavery, my sympathies were aroused and I allowed a colored girl to enter my school The result was the other scholars left. I then concluded to keep a colored school for girls—but a town meeting was held 9th March, 1833—general protest shown against a school of nigger girls." Resolutions were passed and she was generally persecuted—boys allowed and encouraged to stone and rotten egg the house. Legislature of Connecticut enacted no such school to be held in the State under severe fines. Encouraged by Arthur Tappan and others, she continued the school, but 27th June she was arrested and placed in Brooklyn jail, in the same room occupied by Watkins the night preceding his execution

He was gifted with a musical talent and began when a small boy to make violins with an old razor, and was said to be a genius; he became a piano maker; he has made six pianos altogether by hand; he has also made five violins and guitars. He called his violin his "beaver," and made it "wail and cry;" changing the sound, would make it imitate a "hen and chickens." He made an Orrery for a lecturer which was exhibited as a wonder. Several years ago he made a Planetarium for a friend. He spelled his name Philleo and never saw the name spelled Fillow. He was named after Martin Luther (who also was very fond of music). The following is his autograph, written (in 1881) when 86 years old:

In September her house was set on fire, but extinguished; windows were dashed in by men of the town; school broken up. She disposed of her property and left Windam county forever." Thus ended the generous, disinterested, philanthropic Christian enterprise of Prudence Crandall. joined the church in Torrington, Ct. 1821, graduated* M.D. at Fairfield Medical College, settled at Springfield, Illinois, about 1830 and commenced editing a paper there; was one of the discoverers and early settlers of Galena (Lead Mines), full of public spirit and enterprise, and known there as a man of great ability and prominent in all public matters. He was an active student, and while receiving lectures at the college, himself and two other students were suspected of grave snatching for scientific study; the populace surrounded the college and proposed to demolish it unless the three were given up. The faculty, themselves in a close place, induced these students to leave the country—not that they were guilty of the whole act, but accompliced, and to clear them (students) would certainly criminate them (faculty); so that the students, for their courage in daring to meet certain individuals by appointment and take the subjects to the college, left their homes with the best wishes and advice of said faculty and professors, went to Ohio first, thence to Edwardsville, Ill., practiced his profession and was a successful physician, married at St. Clair Co., Ill.; he went to Galena, which was a little more than an Indian village; here he became wealthy and extravagant; he and Dr. Newell started the first paper in this now city (Galena), called "Galenian."† He was an extensive mail carrier in the Northwest, surgeon in the army of the Black Hawk war, and removed several scalps from red men. In 1833 he went East, spending his winters in Washington, D. C.; in '40 went to New Orleans; January '41 taken sick off Florida, taken ashore at Tampa Bay, and died in six days, of intermittent fever.

* He probably studied, but I hardly think he graduated, as his name does not appear on their books; and the person in charge of them at the college writes me, "I do not find the name under Graduates."

† The time of editing as given is about the time he was a Springfield editor; we rather think he might have been in both places.

76 VIII. Bonaparte (M. D.) was b. Mar. [322[b] 1801 at Dover, Duchess Co. N. Y. on "East Mountain." The family removed to Herkimer county, N. Y. near Trenton Falls. Bonaparte evinced very early the most decided intellectual tastes and great dignity of character. Without any pecuniary assistance he managed to obtain an unusual education, and then by teaching procured the means to attend the Medical College at Fairfield, N. Y., where he graduated 18 January 1826. He married at Poland, N. Y., Dec. 1828 Miss Eliza Benchley [dau. of Jenks and Polly (Sweezy) B.], b. at Poland, N. Y., 24 Feb. 1809. He located at Cedarville, N. Y.; was P. M. 1835 and later; for 10 years he had a very successful practice, winning an extensive reputation as a physician and a public-spirited, progressive man; here he accumulated a considerable fortune which afterwards melted away in his devotion to principles. His struggles at this period were full of romantic interest; in 1840 he was induced to change his res. to Newport, N. Y., which offered a larger field for medical practice; about this time both the Temperance and the Anti-Slavery questions were agitating the country, and he espoused both these reforms with all the fearlessness and fervor of his nature.

He, like many other devoted men, suffered a martyrdom that can be little understood in these later and more tolerant days. The liquor element of the town was very powerful and did its best to destroy him; the pro-slavery sentiment assailed him with calumny and hatred and often threatened vengeance, but he never flinched from his duty. Dr. Philleo did not live to see the odious system which he had fought destroyed. He moved to Utica N. Y. 1850, where he died 10 Dec. 1855.* His wife died at Poland, N.

* Some of his children (report says) res. Utica, N. Y., and the Directory shows several who might be there now—but letters addressed to them receive no attention.

Y., 2 Feb. 1878.* Though he had suffered from obloquy and persecution, as sentiment changed in the community he came to be rightly esteemed for his noble principles, zeal and courage. As an allopathist he was far in advance of his school. He was a man of strong religious nature, but had no sympathy with bigotry and entertained broad and liberal religious views. He was a Democrat in the Jackson days, but identified himself with the Liberty party on its first formation.

77 IX. Jefferson b. at Dover 1805. He studied medicine with his brothers Addison and Bonaparte; commenced practice with Bonaparte at Cedarville; about 1834 he went to Galena, Ill.; he pursued his work of M. D. there with untiring zeal until his forces gave away, and he had an attack of hemorrhage of the lungs; fall of '35 started with E. A. Philleo [261] for the West Indies for health; went beyond New Orleans, but failing fast, returned, and when near mouth of Ohio river he died (before January 6, 1836); buried at Commerce, Missouri. He was small in stature, resembling his brothers, but unlike any of the family, he had blue eyes; unmarried.

ut, making up his mind, he was firm in his decision. The author has in his possession the iron skeleton of the old "Bull plow" by which he earned much of his livelihood. He was an agriculturist, and by judicious calculations, economy and thrift, rose to have many title deeds of the broad acres of Cranberry Plains and surroundings. CHILDREN OF MOSES AND POLLY (FILLOW) GREGORY. 31

122 I. Chloe born 3 Feb. 1796, m. 23 April [450 1812 Capt. Alfred [son of Jonathan, Jr. and Nancy (Taylor) Taylor], b. 24 Nov. 1791–2, d. 15 March 1887, res. (Poplar Plains), Westport, Ct. He was selectman of Westport, 1839 and 1849.

He remembered when only two wagons were used in that part of the town ; they were owned by Edmund Tuttle and Josiah Gregory—has carried grain to mill where now stands successor to Prowitt's drug store, Norwalk, Ct.; and also, when he was a boy, he has visited the spring on the west side of Main street, Norwalk, when there was but one store on that side, viz.: Capt. Moses Gregory's.

In the war of 1812, at the time of his marriage, he went to Norwalk to fit up for housekeeping—he bought a quart pitcher of molasses, which cost 75 cents. Remembered the great September gale, well ; he lived near the cemetery (at Poplar Plains), and a tree blew down in front of the door, covering the door, so an ax had to be used before they could pass. His house was built in 1825, where he died ; the timber was cut in Honey Hill (Wilton) woods. He went to Danbury three times on the cars, and to New York and New Haven once, also to New York once by boat ; this was the extent of his outside travel. They have attended church steady over half a century; she remarked she thought they were saved to care for each other. He first voted for James Monroe in 1816 ; he last voted for Grover Cleveland. His name appears as one of the incorporators of his town. His title of Captain fell to him from commanding a company of State militia for three years.

His description of military tactics suggests the changes in method and practice now. Occupation, farmer.

He lived in the house where he died for 62 years. For nearly 75 years this worthy couple trod life's pathway together in peace and harmony, and he, with a genial and social nature, was universally a favorite, with young and old; he was fond of amusing his listeners with his funny stories. His funeral took place from Christ Church (of which he was vestryman for nearly 55 years), at 2 o'clock, March 17; remains buried in C. C. cemetery.

The following verses were composed by Anna Jelliff, entitled :

"POLLY ESTER GREGORY'S REFLECTIONS."

Reflection is a lovely gem, set in a youthful mind;
It spreads its wings and rises high—it's deeper than a mine.

Reflection calms the rage of pride, and plants a lovely vine,
Whose fertile soil and daily growth the tallest cedars climb.

Reflection teaches lovely youth that they are born to die;
Their blushing cheek and sparkling eye can ne'er grim death defy.

Sing, Williamsburgh, N. Y.,) Louisa J. Walsh [dau. of Thos. Smith and Susan (Moore) W], b. 10 Dec. 1835. His res. 277 9th ave, N. Y.

He was born at Wilton (Cannon's), Ct., at the residence of Joel Godfry deceased. In 1835 when 14 years of age, he went as clerk for two years in the grocery business for Mr. Gilbert at Westport, Ct. Thence also as clerk one year for Mr. Alva S. Gray in the hardware trade at the same place. He worked one year on the farm for Luzon Jelliff, after which for 16 years he taught district and boarding school. In 1855 he came to New York city and located at the corner of 26th st. and 6th ave., in hardware business, but he he soon moved to 9th ave., at No. 277, where he has since continued that trade. In 1869 he had the pneumonia which left him with a chest weakness. When the spring month of March comes he expects to be in Florida to avoid the damp and blustering winds. While having this sickness his doctor pronounced his case hopeless and said "his race was short and quickly run." He remembers "Uncle Benny" his grandfather well, and looked forward with much interest to New Years when he visited his grandparents at their home in Poplar Plains, Westport. He joined the church of Methodist Protestant at Georgetown, Ct., while but 21 years of age.

At present 1887, he is a member of the 24th St., M. E. church. He stuck the first spade in the ground for its building, and commenced Sabbath school with 9 ragged children he found in the street. He is an indomitable worker and owns a farm of about 280 acres at "Bingle Hill" modernly called "Mt. Holly" Westchester Co., N. Y., and runs a milk dairy of about 50 cows, which milk goes to the New York market. He resides through the winter in New York city and occupies himself with the hardware business, but goes up on his farm in June and stays until about the middle of October. He claims to be a specialist in stone wall laying and although a small man he has great endurance and great will power and when he goes on the farm he is never idle but got a plenty of push. He is not a loud talker but determined and his plans are well projected. He possesses mildness yet decided.

TO MY FATHER AND MOTHER ON THE SIXTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF THEIR WEDDING DAY.

BY LIBBIE A. PHILO.

To-day—just sixty years,
My father, mother dear,
Together—didst thou launch thy barque,
Upon life's river, clear.

Adown its flowing stream,
Beset with reef and shoal,
Mid cloud or sunshine, didst thou glide,
Till nearing now its goal.

No storm could e'er divide
Thy hearts, which beat as one ;
No breaker cause to drift apart,
Thy voyage once begun.

Thy "Star of Hope" hath beamed
Upon thy checquered way ;
And through the darkness ever gleamed,
The light of coming day.

And now, when age bedims
The lustre of thine eyes,
And hoar, and silvery are thy locks
Thy children would arise—

To call thee ever blessed,
And cheer thy failing years.
Oh ! lightly may earth's shadows fall,
Be few, and soft thy tears.

And when at sunset hour
Thy barque shall gently glide
Into yon haven, mayest thou find
"It light at eventide."

We hope to clasp thy hands,
Beyond this world of pain,
Where aged brows no wrinkles wear
And hearts grow young again.

His public course seems to have been brilliant. "He was a bright ornament of the Hartford Co. bar, and had he applied himself strictly to the study of law, might have been one of the learned and distinguished of his profession; as it was he was eminently successful and was a brilliant star. From his admission he was noted for a brilliant intellect, and in connection with his zeal and fidelity to his client, his sound judgment and logical reasoning, gave him a commanding power as a counsellor and advocate. In his legal judgment he seldom erred. He did not seem to realize his real ability, and especially were his efforts directed on points of law." I cannot better describe his life than reprint his memoriam in Connecticut Law Reports obituary notices, the press, etc., written by those who best knew him. Conn. Rept. Superior Court contains mem'l of his life, "says he received a good academic education, studied law with Hon. Geo. S. Catlin, of Windam, Ct., admitted 1845, and held very respectable position of the Hartford Co. bar; was eminently logical, his briefs in the supreme court were generally expounded into full arguments and were fine specimens of logical reasoning. He was known to thousands as a graceful writer of fiction." He commenced a serial entitled "Akin by Marriage," and "Twice Married." The annual obituary notices of eminent men during 1858, by Hon. Nathan Crosby, says, "He was a pleasing and graceful writer to Graham's and Putnam's magazines, Harper's and Atlantic Monthly. The memory of his warm genial nature, his uprightness and his many excellencies, will be cherished by a broad circle of hearts and intimate friends." Of his marriage, etc., the obituary notice of the Hartford Eve. Press states, "Few unions have been happier." His legal arguments were sound and able. His first contribution was printed in March and April numbers of Graham's Mag., 1848—"The Cruise of the Gentiles," by "Frank Byrne." Afterward he wrote, "Of and Concerning the Moon" (Graham's, Dec. 1850), "Stage Coach Stories" (Putnam's). Had a work in press, "Description of Plymouth and its Neighborhood." He meant to write a full-grown novel illustrative of New England life and customs. In 1846 and 1849 he was clerk of the House in Connecticut Legislature. Before he commenced the study of law he spent considerable time abroad—two or three voyages to the West Indies, desiring an increase of health and having a love for adventure. He made a trip to St. Petersburgh, led by the some object. He is mentioned in "The Dict. of American Biographies" (p. 713 Biographical and Gen. Library, 64 Madison avenue, N. York). We feel like printing a more extended description of his life's history, but space will not admit.

369 I. Eliza born 16 Nov. 1805, m. 19 Oct. [942 1823, Seth Grumman, [s. of John and Eleanor (Tuttle) G.] b. 15 Feb. 1802, d. 16 Aug. 1858. Farmer. She d. 19, July 1874. Their last res. "Grumman Hill," Wilton, Ct.

She was careful, economical, and prudent, yet a kind, genial, hospitable friend, full of fun. She was enabled by prudence in early life and heirship from her father to have a competency of worldly possessions to cheer her days and be happy in the esteem and confidence of her many friends. She was a woman too like her sisters of even temperament, social, truthful, careful of giving offence, honest and modest. She possessed the same characteristic of the family: economy, yet as willing to give as to take. She could possess nothing that justly belonged to others yet no one felt it more than she if cheated from her just due. She was a good neighbor and was greatly missed by her friends when death called her away. Although the eldest she was permitted to live and saw three of her sisters die before her. She was a widow sixteen years, and was a good mother and transmitted to her only living offspring her good qualities and taught him to love his parents which he never forgot and was never ashamed to say "I love my mother," always taking her advice. None resents a slur on his mother more than he. Her last request to her spiritual adviser was to sing "My latest sun is sinking fast."

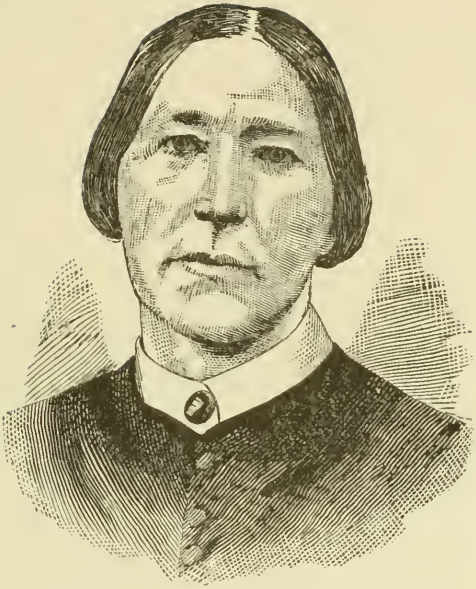
†Phoebe, from Greek, light, splendid, radiant. Fem. of Phoebus.

David M Fillow

In speaking of her goodness and many virtues I think none will disagree with me. She was one of exemplary habits and disposition, a faithful, kind, peaceful and loving companion, leading a practical Christian life, and sustained it to the last. A woman of rare virtues, possessing purity of mind, simplicity of character, a winning gentleness of manners with a meek and quiet spirit, she won the admiration of all who knew her. Noble and generous in her disposition always contributing to the extent of her ability toward any good object. Her behavior was ever cheerful and she possessed sterling integrity. With her many friends no taint of dishonesty ever cast a shadow on her good name. Was unostentations in her mode of life, amiable, modest, endearing to her a large circle of friends whom it was her delight to entertain, and none who visited her could say "I was not welcome." She was a genuine friend and commanded again exemplary temperament. Probably no one ever saw her in an angry mood; a favorable characteristic was gentleness of demeanor at all times, and none knew her but to praise her. She had no small arts to win popular favor, yet her character was full of winning traits. To her family she was all that a wife and mother could be. She lived to see her children grown up, and died with the warmest affection of family relations. We cannot now recall her gentle and affectionate nature without a deep sense of gratitude, and can wish the Fillow family no higher honor than to furnish other's endowed with as many endearing qualities as she possessed. Her patience, and fortitude, during her severe and painful illness, was most conspicuous during all that trying time. She was never known to show the slightest impatience, submissively she bore her suffering and affliction. Her remains are resting at "Hillside" or "Joe's Hill" Cem., Wilton, Ct., where like her dau., there has been erected to their memory a marble stone within a well fenced plot.



PHEBE (FILLOW) VAN HOOSEAR.

David Nash Van Hoosear, [son of David and Sally (Nash) V. H.] was born at Wilton, Ct., 1 May 1817. He learned the shoemakers trade and worked at it for many years but seeing that his farm needed his personal supervision, he left his trade, added more acres to the homestead and commenced the agricultural pursuit which he has followed ever since. He with his son, are breeding thouroughbred Devon cattle, Shropshiredown and Spanish Merino sheep. His idea of Temperance is total abstainence which he practices.

He was selectman of Wilton, 1870-2-3 and has held many minor offices in said town. He 2d m. Sarah Ann (Stratton) Banks, wid. of Barzilla Banks, of Bridgeport, Connecticut. She died 1 June, 1888.

like his brothers, was unpretending and embracing the family trait of geniality. He had many friends which listened to his jokes with interest. You would seldom meet him without his telling a story to illustrate what he was talking about. The author remembers with pleasure his sense of humor that was a characteristic of his mind, yet with all his fun, where he was sure he was right he was decided. In politics he was Republican. His first wife for several years before her death, suffered with chronic rheumatism and became entirely helpless, when he carried her in his arms when she was moved. This was a great care for him, but he done it with pleasure. He was no boaster and was an honest, prudent, courteous and hospitable citizen, a man of generous impulses, warm feelings and kindness of heart, esteemed most by those who knew him best. He died 24, Feb. 1885. His decease brought sadness to the hearts of many friends.

* By 1st wife.

I'm sitting to-day mid the shadows that are cast by the old maple trees
That stand in the yard of Van Hoosear the sixth and half cousin to me.
Who lives near the village of Wilton that lies in the Nutmeg State,
Way down by the Sound of Long Island; now list while a story I relate:

I came to the land of my fathers, where sprang my ancestral tree
To climb the rough, rugged mountains and the beautiful scenery to see.
They tell me that here is a section extending for miles far and wide
Where dwelt my noble ancestors, and here is the spot where they died.

But now their children have scattered in distant parts far o'er the land,
And became to each other as strangers, a fact which I quite understand;
And to-day they hardly can tell you from whence their forefather's came,
Whether from Turkey or Ireland or France, and some of them misspell their name.

I stood on a secluded hillside, 'mid bramble and rock and stone,
And gazed on the spot where once stood Old Samuel Philleo's home.
The storms of more than a century have since swept over the place,
And not even a fragment is left to denote that this was the beginning of my race.

But the birds still sing and the flowers as sweet, and the breezes they blow the same,
And the world moves on with the same old gait as it did before he sold his claim;
And thus it will be as in years of the past: it matters little to you or to me
Who our grandfather was, or what was his rank, if only honest and true are we.

950 V. William Francis born at Norwalk, Ct., 15 July 1845. The history of his early life seems to have been remarkable. When four years and ten months old, on the 1st day of May, he was playing about the yard and was last seen at 10 o'clock, his mother thinking he was in the care of the father. The dinner hour came and brought the inquiry "where is Frank?" A search began. Back of the house, not far away the cows had been driven, and intervening was a peat ditch. It is supposed he wandered towards the cows and having a little whip he evidently thought they needed a little training, and trying to reach them he fell into the deep ditch in which he sunk, the ruffle on his little bonnet was seen by his father who pulled him out, drowned, as he supposed, The usual remedies were tried, a physician called, and every means used for his resuscitation. After a long treatment life showed itself and he was restored, but in the hurry and anxiousness of the friends, a hot iron had been placed so near his little feet, it had burned the plantar surface of one of them to a crisp from which injury he never entirely recovered. A few years after he suffered from fever and his attendants thought him dead, and he was laid out preparatory for burial and again he had life fully restored, but since which he has enjoyed good health and promises a long life. His biography might be headed, "Twice Dead." He was educated at a common school and consequently never had the advantages of many, but he secured an honest name and in after years he so won the confidence of his aunt (No 370) by his careful attention to her, that after her death it was found she had bequeathed about $2200 to him; this was a great help to him. He was converted in 1864 under the Baptist faith, joined the church at Norwalk, Ct. He saw the need of a church in the vicinity of his home where preaching and a Sabbath school could be attended by those that had no means of getting to Norwalk. He headed a subscription with $100 toward building a church and in 1883 it was built at "Cranberry Plains," Norwalk, and dedicated as "Christian Union church" free of debt. He has been superintendent of the Sunday school since its formation. He is possessed of musical talent and acted as chorister in the church in which he labored so hard to have erected. He has followed tin peddling for 21 years and his numerous acquaintances knew him as an honest, industrious and prudent man and may be recognized by his hearty laugh, when heard even if not seen. At present (1887), he is unmarrried and resided at Norwalk, Ct.

William F. Fillow

951 VI. David Alonzo born 1 Dec. 1853, m. 25 Dec. 1876, Julia Crissey [dau. of Isaac Newton and Esther Weed (Smith) C.], b. 25 Dec. 1840, ocu. tin peddler. Res. Norwalk, Ct. One child: i. Lina Bell, b. 26 May 1883. ii. ———.

CHILD. OF DAVID N. AND PHEBE (FILLOW) VAN HOOSEAR. 373

956 I. Ophelia born 30 Nov. 1839, m. at Wilton, 28 Feb. 1866, Geo. B. Abbott* [son of Lewis and Calcina (Sturges) A.], b. 29 June 1839. She d. 4 Feb. (11:15 P. M.) 1879.† Of my only sister I can do her but justice and deed to her memory briefly her life history. She was b. at Norwalk, Ct., but soon after removed to Wilton, with her parents, where she resided (with a few years exception at Branchville, Ct), until her death. She received a good education at Wilton and finished her studies under Mr. Geo. Godfry (Cannons) Wilton, Ct. A friend writes of her death [as printed in the "Georgetown Star," Feb. 14 1879.] "She bore her great suffering with patience and I heard her murmur distinctly, in God's own time I shall go." Her mother died just nine years before her, same month, day, and within a few minutes of the same hour. Strange coincidences. After it was learned she could not live the house was thronged with living friends, for she says "Let them come in, I want to see them all." Among her last words to her father were "I loved you so but I must leave you." "I want to ask—Do you think we all shall know each other there?" He answered "yes." The same friend writes: "No wonder such bitter tears fell from her brothers eyes, and heart broken sobs from his lips as he gazed on her fast fading away, as she asks, do you think I am dying? A few hours later, no more pain, sorrow, or dying, no more dropsy or consumption. She is dead." Was a professor of the M. E. faith and died a devout and sincere Christian, possessing mildness of character, a characteristic given to her by her mother. No children.

957 II. David Hermon born at Wilton, Ct., 20 March 1844, m. 29 Oct. 1867, Miss Sarah Jane Quick* [dau. of Thaddeus Smith and Harriet (Nichols) Q. of Wilton, Ct.], b. at Redding, Ct., 12 June 1846. One child: i. Clinton Quick, b. 7 Nov. 1868, unm.

The name Hermon or Harmon is of German origin. "General of an army." My paternal parent informs me that he when a boy firmly resolved, if he should ever become the father of a son he would call him Hermon which resolution he carried out. He cannot recall the item of the name's first impression. He may have obtained it from his Biblical study as it occurs seven times in the Bible. Rev. Jas. Hoyt (Hoyt Genealogy), remarks: "It is easier to write history than to delineate character; and portrait painters can take other mens' faces more easily than their own."

I feel the delicacy of the task to write of myself however brief; yet I do wish to record at least two epochs of my life, birth, marriage and will leave the third for my descendents to do. I have tried to entertain you with good qualities of my ancestors, my characteristics are known to most of my generation and will matter not to the next. I was born in Wilton, Ct., in the blustering March, toward evening, in the N. W. room [1st floor] of my father's house, and my son was born there too. My early boyhood days at school were spent at Dist. No. 9, Wilton and a few years study under the Hon. B. F. Brown (principal) Cannon, Ct. I am no boaster and despise any who engage in this artifice to deceive people; but it does seem I was born in a memorial time. It was in this year Jas. K. Polk was elected president of the U. S. First telegraph line in U. S. N. Y. and N. Haven R. R.

* She was the grand dau. of Samuel P. and great grand-dau. of Samuel of North Salem, N. Y.

projected. Zion's Hill church built. Wells discovered, and first realized Anaesthesia by Nitrous oxide, ether or chloroform. Joseph Smith [Morman leader] murdered, etc. If I should write at length of myself, it would interest none but myself, yet

I've lived for those who love me,
Whose hearts seem good and true;
To such I leave this volume,
For the good that it may do.

I know I'm not a poet,
I would not claim to be;
My friends, I think will know it,
When these few lines they see.

But strangest things will happen
And it is well sometime,
To let ones thoughts take wing,
And soar aloft in rhyme.

My wife oft' turns upon me,
With mischief in her eye,
My friends, she thinks will wonder,
Why I attempt to fly,

But though she thus regards me
She says they would forgive;
If they knew how hard I labor'd,
My thoughts in rhyme to give.

The course is tried by many,
Some middle ground to find:
Between the two so called extremes,
And here I fix my mind.

As to the views of others,
I no objections raise,
But I dislike to hear a man,
Indulging in self praise.

I shun my fellows never,
But bow to all I meet,
And whether base or clever.
With kindness all I greet.

The names and dates of all,
I would delight in giving—
The record of our many friends,
Including dead and living.

I claim a kinship to you all,
It happened thro' the Almighty's plan,
You can't my name by Fillow call—
"My mother was a woman not a man."

Alike I've tried to treat them,
This fruitful race of Fillow;
I hope one day to meet them all
Beyond times Ocean billow.

A book to each I'd give you
If ampler were my treasure;
But I must say farewell,
With love, in boundless measure.

THE AUTHOR'S DREAM.

Could old father John, from his home in the skies,
Return to the scenes that once gladden'd his eyes;
And could good old Aunt Sarah, his dear loving wife,
Re-visit the spot she so lov'd in her life—
A feeling of wonder half mingled with fear,
Might well overcome them, at what they see here;
For crowding around them on every hand,
They would meet their descendents, a numerous band.

Says John to his father, look round now I pray,
All these on a visit assembled to-day,
They are all your descendents, brothers, sisters and all,
And all their dear children, will come at your call.
Now let us say welcome, to every one here,
We are glad they're so many, your old heart to cheer.

We'll shake hands with Jimmy, our dear own grandson,
Greet Aunt Mary and Stephen, and note every one,
Not forgetting the poet, dear departed Aunt Anna,
Who now with the angels, is singing "Hozanna."
And next cometh Isaac and Ada, then dearest Aunt Lizzie,
Stephen, Mary and Nathan, and Polly so busy,
Susannah, and Orpha, Lewis, then brother-in-law Moses,
Then John Fillow's Sarah, this gathering discloses.

Then comes Benny, Clemmons; the next that we meet,
Is our friend Aaron Jellett, whom we cordially greet,
But not as of old, tis no longer "Jellett,"
They now call him Jelliff, and thus do we spell it.
Next comes uncle Ben, whose sir name was Scribner,
He married Aunt Phebe whose first husband left her;
But not till call'd home, by the messenger death,
Did he bid her farewell, and yield up his breath.

Of Samuel Partrick, but little I'll say,
But pass on to others, who lived in that day,
But as I proceed, they strangely commingle,
And all get mixed up, whether married or single;
And I hear them inquiring, as onward they move—
And asking each other in accents of love—
Have you seen this or that one, a sister or brother—
While others are asking for father or mother.

Here are children of Isaac, let me tell you their names;
Chloe, Seth and Lucy, but not one called James,
Seth, Enos, and Stephen, Epenetus, Eveline;
Who 2d married a Fillow, proud as a Queen;
Here's Elijah, broad shouldered and full of good cheer,
And talkative Chloe, to her children most dear,
With Stephen, her husband, the father of eight,
Hannah, Rhoda and Phebe, whose husband was (Haight).

Here is Sam'l whose wife was Abigail Fountain,
Who, with their children, lived on the East Mountain ;
There were Enoch, and Esther, who first saw the light
In the old town of Dover, a wonderful sight !
And Elijah, whose fate, we sadly deplore,
He fought for his country, till the warfare was o'er.
Then perished by poison, and yielded his breath,
A victim of torture, more dreadful than death.

In this group we find the children of Phineas,
Olive, Joel and Lewis, and Lizzie Artemas ;
Then another Elijah, and his good brother Dennis,
And last though not least, his (Swift) daughter Annie,
But children of Enoch, I see them not here,
For the help of the sick ones three Doctors appear,
These are Martin and Luther, from the reformer nam'd,
And Calvin, whose goodness was always far famed.

And here I would gladly call each one by name,
And note all their virtues, and thus spread their fame,
But there are so many, the work would ne'er be done,
And I should be sorry the task was begun.
So I'll bring altogether, and greet them as friends.
And to any omitted, I can there make amends.
So now one and all, I hail you with cheer,
And greet-all my kindred as " Fillow Friends " dear.

But John comes to me, and says " whom have we here ?"
I answer " Half Fillow " and soon made it clear.
" It is Hermon, and Jannie, and Clinton our son, While the others have many, we boast of but one."
I'm compiling a book ; of the Fillow's complete,
I am glad such a circle of friends here to meet.
Though some of their ages I cannot find out,
I will put all together and write it about.

But now, I'm all right since I see you all here.
You can speak for yourselves, and thus end my fear.
For all these dear friends, their ages must know,
So good bye " Uncle John," and now I must go.
But let us all join'in this toast, ere we part,
" Speak we well of each other," words pure from the heart.
Thus keep up the fame of our ancestral blood,
While the years shall roll on, that shall bring us to God.

UNCLASSIFIED.

William Fillow res. (Dec. 28 1884) Lee, Mass.

George Philo or Philleo is said to have resided at Acron, N. Y., a few years ago.

Jane Philo,* Spencer, Tioga Co., N. Y.

Charles Philo, born in England. Res. Brooklyn, N. Y., ocu. printer, was probably not related to this family.

Frank Filio, possibly in no ways related, Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., resided there few years ago.

Peter Fillou, N. Y. Dutch church records.

Nicholas Fillou, N. Y. Dutch church records.

*In February, 1880, Harvey Lake, of North Spencer, Tioga Co., N. Y., died leaving an estate valued at $10,000. No will could be found and the property was claimed by the heirs-at-law, Fred Lake and Mrs. Jane Philo. [Troy paper clipping, 1881.] A letter addressed them was unanswered.

J. K. Philo of Chicago, Ohio. Probably related to this family but the author could not trace the line.

Angeline Searles of New York City, is said to be related, but how not defined.

Philo Hoyse of Albia, N. Y. Mothers maiden name was Philo, it is said. A letter addressed him was returned. Possibly she is included in this work.

A. K. Philleo of Rock Island, Ill., said: "Have you the Philleo family near White Sulphur Springs, West Va., (Greenbriar Co), or Winchester, Frederick, Co., Va.?" The author knows nothing of them.

"Otto Philo*, a man of striking personal appearance, an ex-officer of the Prussian army, came here from Berlin some months ago and squandered $100,000, after which he received $700 from his mother to marry with, but the young woman jilted him. He took to gambling and spent his last penny at a faro bank. Yesterday at daylight after playing all night, he went to the Lake, found a hole in the ice, waving adieu in a dramatic manner to two ladies, plunged into the water and his body lodged under the ice. His brother is reported to be a German Count." [Chicago, Ill., Jan. 15, (prob. 1884). "Troy Daily Times." Paper clipping.]

Jas. J. Philo, E. Washington St., Syracuse, N. Y. (Syracuse Directory).

*There appears Otto S. Philo, No. 1189.

(Dec., 1888, 20,000)

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY.

One volume allowed at a time, and obtained only by card; to be kept 14 days (or seven days in the case of fiction and juvenile books published within one year) without fine; not to be renewed; to be reclaimed by messenger after 21 days, who will collect 20 cents besides fine of 2 cents a day, including Sundays and holidays; not to be lent out of the borrower's household, and not to be transferred; to be returned at this Hall.

Borrowers finding this book mutilated or unwarrantably defaced, are expected to report it; and also any undue delay in the delivery of books.

 No claim can be established because of the failure of any notice, to or from the Library, through the mail.

The record below must not be made or altered by borrower.
